Contract terms:

- Because markets can change rapidly and exhibit large price swings, you need to carefully consider the quantity of gallons contracted. You should not plan on this contract covering all of your LP gallons but rather a percentage or the bulk of your LP needs. If you use more gallons than you have contracted you will be charged the current posted price for those gallons. The price of the additional gallons could be higher or lower than the contracted rate. If gallons remain on this contract at the end of the contract duration you may be assessed a penalty on those remaining gallons.
- If posted prices are lower than your contract price on the last day of the contract you may be charged the difference between your contract price and the posted price plus 8 cents per gallon on those remaining gallons.
- If posted prices are higher than your contract price on the last day of the contract you may be assessed a penalty of 8 cents per gallon on those remaining gallons.
- We reserve the right to add freight costs that are above and beyond typical if we need to bring propane in from distant terminals to satisfy this contract due to lack of availability of product at local terminals.
- Regular credit terms apply to signature only contracts. On signature only contracts the contract price is the cash price of the gallons contracted. The ticket left upon delivery of contracted gallons will reflect the charge price of those gallons. Discounts given for paying for the LP before the bill is due takes the price to the cash price listed on this contract.
- Summer fill gallons are not applied to your contract. Remember this when estimating your gallons.
- Once the contract period is entered, all of the gallons you purchase will be applied to your contracts in the order that you purchased them until they are satisfied.
- Contract gallons may not be transferred from one type of contract to another.
- Your account standing must be current before you can contract LP for the 2011-2012 heating season.
